Lori Johnson, CBN News Reporter, says resolving to live healthier in the new year is a great decision! If that's your goal, you should know studies show that the more specific you can be, the more likely you will reach your goal. Here are the top ten healthy habits for the new year:

1. Exercise. Exercising has both short-term and long-term benefits. Right away, it can improve your mood, reduce stress, and even make your brain work better. Over time, exercise can prevent health problems ranging from obesity and diabetes to heart disease and even cancer. Even with all these benefits, some 60 percent of Americans stay on the couch. If you'd like to be in the 40 percent of regular exercisers, psychologists say to focus on the first three weeks. Be encouraged that it will get easier! Studies have shown that any activity repeated daily becomes a habit after three weeks.
2. Eat a healthy breakfast. Preferably with protein, within 90 minutes of waking-up. This starts your metabolism for the day and also prevents you from getting too hungry and overeating later in the day.
3. Eat five servings of fruits and vegetables a day. One serving equals a 1/2 cup of cooked vegetables or a full cup of raw or leafy vegetables or one small whole fruit.
4. Avoid trans fats. Trans fats are found mostly in processed foods, so if the list of ingredients includes the word, "hydrogenated," stay away.
5. Eat good fats. Omega-3s are found in foods like fish, especially salmon, sardines, and fish oil supplements. Other choices include walnuts, almonds, and flaxseed. These have been shown to reduce the risk of heart disease, improve your immunity, and reduce inflammation.
6. Avoid sugar. This is one of the toughest. Its negative laundry list runs from obesity to diabetes to heart disease and cancer. The average American consumes 135 pounds of sugar a year, compared with 109 pounds 20 years ago and only five pounds in the late 1800s!
7. Cleanse your hands often. Eating right and exercising aren't the only habits that keep you healthy. Did you know the best way to avoid getting sick is to keep your hands clean? When using hand sanitizer, make sure it's at least 60 percent alcohol, get in all those nooks and crannies, and rub your hands until they're dry. When using soap and water, lather-up for a full 20 seconds.
8. Practice good dental health. Believe it or not, periodontal infection contributes to heart disease, diabetes, and even premature, underweight births.
9. Get regular screening. The type of screenings you need depend on your age and

Some of the most important ones include an annual physical, blood pressure, and cholesterol test, colonoscopy, mammogram, pap test, and prostate and skin cancer screening. 10. Get enough sleep. So at this time of year, when many of us vow to start afresh, take note of these habits to make 2011 your healthiest year yet.

Lori Johnson, CBN News Reporter, asks are you often sad during the winter? People have talked about those blues since before the Civil War. But in the last 30 years, doctors have officially recognized the winter blues as a named, medical condition called Seasonal Affective Disorder, or SAD. The good news is that you can beat it! Decreased sunlight during the winter is the main reason why people develop SAD, because less daylight can disrupt our circadian rhythm, also known as our body clock. Melatonin, a hormone which makes us feel tired, is triggered by darkness and reaches its highest levels at night. People also have increased melatonin levels during the day. On the opposite side, the neurotransmitter serotonin, which is triggered by sunlight, makes us feel happy. But people with SAD have low levels of serotonin. Women are more often affected than men and the disorder is more prevalent in northern climates. Light therapy is a very effective treatment and involves sitting in front of a specialized light box for 30 minutes a day. The box needs to have a power of 10,000 lux, which is more than 20 times stronger than the average light bulb. Beware though: Tanning beds are not an acceptable treatment because they emit ultraviolet rays. So say "no" to the tanning bed, but "yes" to the light box. And in addition to the light box, other ways to brighten up your life include: Using higher wattage light bulbs, installing a sky light, sitting closer to the window, trimming branches that block sunlight and simply opening the blinds. If you have SAD and work in a dark environment make it a point to spend a few minutes outside every hour or so. Although it's tempting for people with SAD to reach for their comforter, they should reach for their gym bag instead. Exercise is another great tool for fighting the effects of SAD. A cardiovascular workout pumps oxygen into the brain, making us alert and energetic. Exercise also releases endorphins, neurotransmitters that create a feeling of euphoria. So if you suffer from Seasonal Affective Disorder, or SAD, a few lifestyle changes can help you enjoy winter. And spring will be here before you know it!

Lori Johnson, CBN News Reporter, says during the past 50 years Americans have developed a drinking problem with convenience. We buy our drinks already-made, everything from water to coffee. But it's the ingredients found in of some of those beverages that have some physicians sounding a warning. Take for instance energy drinks. With names like Rock Star, Monster, and Full Throttle, energy drinks pack a punch that young people can't get enough of. In fact, one in three teenagers regularly drinks them. Energy drinks burst on the scene 20 years ago. They are now so popular, Americans are expected to spend $9 billion on them this year, making them the fastest-growing beverage market. What's in these energy drinks that has them flying off the shelves? Mainly caffeine, at least the amount found in a strong cup of coffee, sometimes much more. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration only requires that manufacturers list the presence of caffeine in a product, not how much. Energy drinks can also be loaded with sugar -- a quarter-cup on average. Also, since they're marketed as dietary supplements, they often contain unregulated herbal stimulants like Taurine, Guarana, Creatine and B vitamins. Doctors say this can be a dangerous mix. In fact, the medical journal Pediatrics warns energy drinks can cause kids to suffer heart palpitations, seizures, strokes, and even sudden death. The pediatrician also tells his patients not to even drink one because they can be highly addictive. Energy drinks are often marketed to athletes for that extra boost. But they can pose even more problems for athletes than non-athletes, including increased blood pressure and serious dehydration. Because of that risk, many athletes who shy away from the energy drinks choose the sports drinks instead. But doctors warn that while sports drinks don't have the caffeine that energy drinks contain, they do have their own set of problems. For instance, sports drinks can corrode teeth even more than soda. The acid in sports drinks erodes the teeth from the first sip until 45 minutes after the last sip, when the saliva returns the mouth to its normal ph balance. So how many carbohydrates are in what you're drinking? It's on the bottle. But watch out -- that number is carbohydrates per serving. Many bottles contain two or more servings. So if you drink the whole bottle, you're consuming at least twice the number of carbohydrates on the label. So while Americans have more beverage choices than ever, doctors say don't be

Lori Johnson, CBN News Reporter, says if you're trying to eat healthy, perhaps you have heard to stay away from processed foods. While that's great advice, it seems many people are confused about what exactly constitutes processed food. If you can't identify them, it's hard to cut processed foods out of your diet. And although most people know processed foods are bad for them, it's often unclear what makes them so dangerous to a person's health. Remember - processed foods are foods that have been altered from their natural state. Have you ever wondered why a pre-packaged food stays fresh for months, when the same food made from scratch grows moldy in just days? It's because food manufacturers use man-made ingredients that prolong a product's shelf life. Unfortunately, they may have the opposite effect on peoples' health. Trans fats are commonly found in commercially fried food and packaged foods, especially baked goods. But you won't see the phrase, "trans fat" in the list of ingredients. Instead, look for the word, "hydrogenated." And beware of labels claiming no trans fats. They're often still in there, because the Food and Drug Administration allows food with up to a half-gram of trans fat per serving to be labeled "trans fat free." The problem is, those servings can be small so we eat many servings, and those half-grams add-up. Vending machines are often loaded with processed foods. In addition to trans fats, they often contain too much salt, which can cause heart problems and creates a craving for even more salt. Another addictive ingredient you'll find in processed foods is high fructose corn syrup, which is linked to obesity and diabetes. Although high fructose corn syrup manufacturers contend it's nutritionally the same as sugar, others say it's worse. Also on the list are other syrups and sweeteners like dextrose, glucose, lactose and maltose. And speaking of chemical names, here's another one to watch out for: monosodium glutamate, or MSG for short. Food manufacturers like it because it adds flavor. But doctors dislike it because it causes high insulin secretion. Believe it or not, even white flour is a processed food. Its soft texture and mild taste is created by removing the most nutritious parts of the wheat berry, the bran and the germ. The starch leftover is digested too fast in the body and can lead to weight gain, diabetes, heart disease and cancer. By contrast, whole wheat flour includes the entire wheat berry, which is digested slowly, making us feel full longer. Although identifying processed foods and removing them from our diet isn't easy, it may be less troubling than dealing with the health problems they could create
